Same old stuff in Paris talks

PARIS (UPI)—The Paris Vietnam talks resumed today after a five-week suspension but once again got nowhere. The United States kept the talks alive, however, in apparent hope that secret talks would follow.

U.S. Ambassador William J. Porter repeated warnings to the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong that the talks would continue only if the Communists agree to talk about the North Vietnamese invasion and other main issues.

After the fruitless session Porter told newsmen, "I sure hope when Le Duc Tho arrives here he can do better than they did today."

Tho is the member of the Hanoi Politburo who held 13 secret talks with presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger. The Hanoi delegation said after today's meeting that Tho would arrive "within the next few days."

President Nixon broke off the talks on March 23 on grounds the Communists were using them only as a propaganda forum. Porter said today's talks were more of the same.

"It was absolute boilerplate (stale copy) from the past," Porter said of today's meeting. "The responses were such that we had to read into the record that they refused to answer questions." He said he would give them a week to reply "because we realize they do not have the authority to reply off the cuff."

Muskie quits primary trail; still 'available'

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, considered almost unbeatable four months ago, withdrew from the remaining Democratic presidential primaries today but announced he was still available for the nomination at the convention in July.

Confronted with a series of losing primary contests, the Maine senator released the 136 1-2 delegates previously pledged to him, declaring "I want them to know that they should feel free to reassess their commitment."

"I have made the decision to withdraw from active participation in the remaining presidential primaries," Muskie solemnly told a news conference. "I do so with regret, but I have no choice. I do not have the money to continue."

His withdrawal from active competition firmly established Sens. Hubert H. Humphrey and George S. McGovern as the new favorites for the nomination at Miami Beach in July but both were faced with strong primary opposition from Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace.

Humphrey, the party's 1968 nominee, was expected to benefit most from the Muskie bow-out inasmuch as both have pitched their campaign appeals to the political center, more than McGovern and Wallace. However, the first repercussion of Muskie's action was an announcement by Sen. Fred R. Harris of Oklahoma that he was endorsing McGovern. Until recently, Harris had said he would endorse no candidate until convention time.

Muskie acknowledged that his new strategy sharply reduced his chances of winning the nomination to run against President Nixon.

"Nevertheless," he added, "at the urging of friends and supporters around the country, I do not withdraw my candidacy." Muskie, who was Humphrey's vice presidential running mate four years ago, ruled out any possibility he would accept the No. 2 spot this year.

Two of his backers, Sens. Philip A. Hart of Michigan and Harold E. Hughes of Iowa, agreed with Muskie's evaluation of his chances, although both declared they would stick with him.

"Hughes described Muskie's prospects as 'poor, very poor,' but foresaw the chances of a deadlocked convention."

Withdrawal to continue

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Despite the continued Communist offensive, President Nixon has decided to pull another 20,000 troops out of Vietnam; but he said the bombing raids on the north would continue as long as the attack persists.

Nixon, in a nationally televised speech Wednesday, also indicated he may have secret assurances that Hanoi is now ready to negotiate in good faith.

The new troop pullout would bring the U.S. force level to 49,000 by July 1—a date by which the administration believes the Communist invasion of South Vietnam will have run its course, according to presidential adviser Henry Kissinger. The date also coincides with the rainy season during which time Hanoi would have difficulty waging the kind of ground war in which it is now involved.

Referring to the peace negotiations which resumed in Paris today, Nixon said "we are resuming the Paris talks with a firm expectation that productive talks leading to rapid progress will follow through all available channels."

That phrase seemed to indicate Nixon may have received some behind-the-scenes assurance as a result of Kissinger's meeting in Moscow last weekend, at which time he was presumably made aware of what the North Vietnamese were willing to do to get the talks started again.

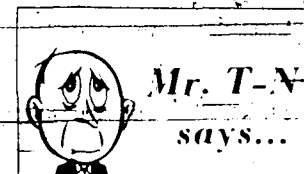

Nixon said the South Vietnamese had shown great progress on the battlefield and "we can now see the day when no more Americans will be involved at all."

But Nixon made it plain he was not going to stop the raids on the North as a condition for resuming the peace talks.

Before Nixon's appearance, the National Peace Action Coalition announced plans for demonstrations Saturday in nearly 20 cities to protest the war and said there would be a nationwide campus strike next week. Referring to that and to similar dissent which has erupted since he resumed bombing Hanoi and Haiphong, Nixon said:

"The Communists have failed in their efforts to win over the people of South Vietnam politically. General Creighton W. Abrams believes that they will fail in their efforts to conquer South Vietnam militarily."

Right now almost any combination of Democratic presidential candidates sounds feasible.

Andrus still for Muskie

BOISE (UPI)—Gov. Cecil D. Andrus' press secretary said today the governor will continue to support Sen. Edmund Muskie, D-Me., unless the Senator withdraws as a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination.

John Hough said "From a legal standpoint the governor is bound to Muskie on the first ballot. From a philosophical point of view, the governor will remain with Senator Muskie until Senator Muskie says he is not a candidate."

Hough said the legislative district Democratic caucuses held April 17 to select delegates to the state convention could the delegates on the state level and bound the state's 17 votes for the national convention on the first ballot.

He said the situation could be altered only if Muskie totally withdrew from the race.

Nolan Hancock, executive secretary of the Democratic Party in Idaho, said Muskie's announcement he was ending his participation in primaries would release his delegates left the Idaho Party in "kind of a predicament. Unless Muskie withdraws and releases his delegates, then as I see it we're still committed to him."

He said he would talk to the Democratic national executive committee later in the day to get more information on the effect of Muskie's decision.

He did say if the release of delegates were accepted, the Muskie delegates selected during the caucuses in Idaho would go to uncommitted status.

Cassia teachers reject agreement

BURLEY — Teachers in the Cassia County School District voted against a proposed agreement with school district administration Wednesday night.

Clyde Wardle, president of the Cassia County Education Association, said the vote against ratification was by an "overwhelming majority" of those attending the mass meeting.

Failure to ratify the agreement reinstates the deadlock in negotiations between the administration and teachers.

The teachers will schedule a mass meeting after contracts are issued, signing their contracts and turning them over to the CCEA in a holding action, Wardle said.

Hazelton losing depot

HAZELTON — The Union Pacific Railroad has asked the Idaho Public Utilities Commission for permission to close its agency here.

The application cited declining revenues and quantities of goods shipped from the station.

The PUC has allowed until May 15 for filing written protests against the closing.

In its application, the Union Pacific said none of the carload shipments forwarded or received at Hazelton requires the services of an agent, and such shipments can be handled through stations at Rupert or Twin Falls. Closing of the station will not affect any services provided to Hazelton, the railroad said.

Revenue from the Hazelton agency in the past several years was listed as $95,893 in 1968; $43,450 in 1969; $52,811 in 1970, and $39,907 for the first 11 months of 1971.

Elmer Pyne, Hazelton mayor, said he has received no word of the UP request but has heard rumors about the closure of the agency for some time. He said he didn't think "anyone in town would like to see it closed," and said that if shipments from bean and potato warehouses in Hazelton were handled out of Rupert or Twin Falls it would appear an agent "would have to be chasing back and forth" to check cars out.

He said there are "lots of cars" loaded out of Hazelton, but he would not know what the effect the approval of the UP request would be until he had studied the situation further.

Apollo steering splashdown path

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI)—Apollo 16's astronauts

steered down the middle of the imaginary corridor leading to a Pacific splashdown this afternoon, predicting their 245 pounds of lunar samples will unlock still more of the moon's secrets.

John W. Young, Thomas K. Mattingly and Charles M. Duke were pestered in the final hours before splashdown by an annoying but minor electrical problem in the main guidance system. At one point Young appeared to solve it by kicking a computer panel.

The astronauts returned a day early, after having rescued the $445-million expedition to the lunar highlands from the brink of failure.

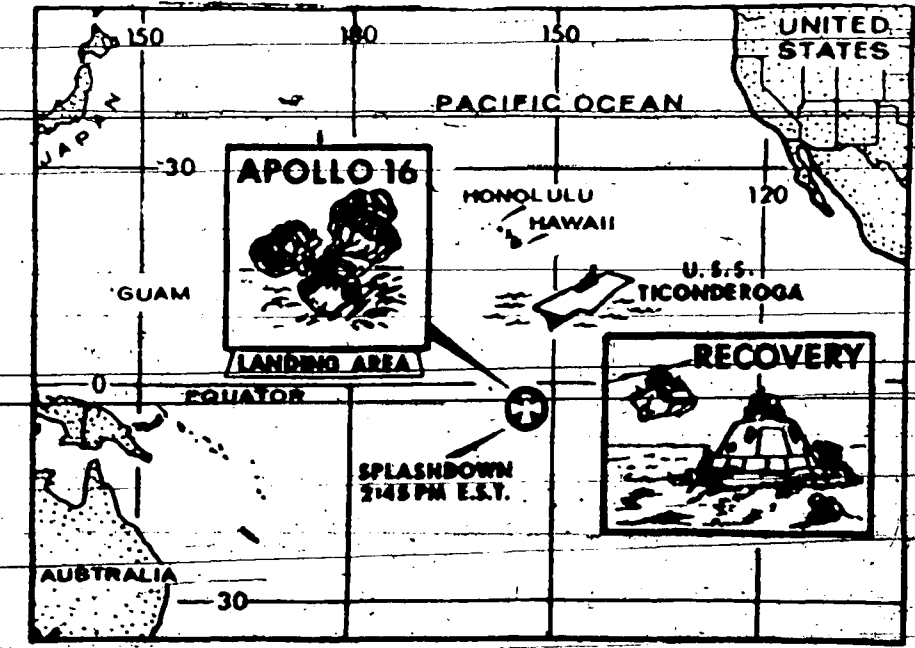

UPI reporter Robert C. Miller aboard the aircraft carrier Ticonderoga said recovery forces were ready for the 2:45 p.m. EST splashdown 1,519 miles south of Honolulu. The weather was excellent, the seas were three feet.

A four-second burst from Apollo 16's control rockets at 11:31 a.m. refined the spacecraft's course leading to the 24,668 mile per hour re-entry.

The path was satisfactory before the maneuver, but controllers decided to do it to make sure the spacecraft's discarded service module would not hit the small Pacific island of Penrhyn.

The course adjustment went well despite nagging trouble with the ship's main guidance system.

Park enters Senate race

TWIN FALLS — Anthony Park, Idaho attorney general, who today announced his candidacy for the U. S. Senate, said this will be a campaign on people problems.

In Twin Falls Wednesday, Park said he plans to address himself to the problems of the people of Idaho as he seeks the Democratic nomination in the U. S. Senate race for the office being vacated by Republican Sen. Len B. Jordan.

Economic issues are among the most vital problems, he said, especially in relationship to the family farmer.

"The family farmer should be given an opportunity to make a decent return on his investment. We must pass legislation to reform our tax structure to discourage giant corporations from going into farming for tax writeoff purposes," Park said.

He said it is unfair for the large corporations, operating farm land at a loss, to compete with the family farmer who must make a profit to survive and must employ the greatest possible efficiency and economy.

Park said the present 72 per cent of parity is not adequate for farmers and said there must be a limit of subsidy pay on any single farm unit of not more than $20,000 regardless of size.

"Each farm operation should be made to stand or fall on its own merits as far as income tax is concerned. The large businesses must not be allowed to go into farming to write off profits on their other business operations," he said.

Another major issue, Park said, is tax reform. "If we could close the loopholes open to high income bracket businesses and individuals, there would be $77-billion a year more in the U. S. treasury and the average taxpayer could realize a 43 per cent, across the board cut in tax rates," he said.

Park noted the 19 largest oil companies in the country today pay only an average 8.5 per cent taxes on $88 million a year in income, or far below the rate charged the wage earner.

Park said he is alarmed to see the country returning to the same pattern of the mid 60s in Vietnam, adding these conditions forced President Johnson not to seek re-election. "The Vietnamese will have to accept the burden the war sooner or later and I for one do not want to see even one more American life lost there," he said.

While serving as Idaho's attorney general, Park has been instrumental in establishing consumer protection offices on a state-wide network basis. These are located in Boise and on the campuses of Idaho State University in Pocatello and the University of Idaho in Moscow, he said.

ALBION — Pomerelle ski area will be open for the last time this season on Sunday.

About a month after the season ends, the area will reopen for a series of four five-day racing camps.

Auto exhaust tax proposed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Environmental spokesmen have suggested the government should impose a tax on cars failing to meet exhaust standards, as a way of breaking the auto industry's insistence that it cannot meet the 1975 clean exhaust deadline.

The suggestion by David G. Hawkins, attorney for the nonprofit Natural Resources Defense Council, sparked interest from Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) officials at a hearing Wednesday.

The hearings, scheduled to end today, are exploring the industry's request for a one-year delay in exhaust antipollution standards, now scheduled for 1975 model cars.

Hawkins said industry warnings of plant shutdowns and unemployment resulting from impossible exhaust standards could be countered by permitting dirtier exhaust but taxing it. The dirtier the exhaust the higher the tax, he suggested, with the levy high enough to spur "greater emission control efforts" by car makers.

Hawkins and J. Lee Rankin, a former U.S. solicitor general, testified on behalf of 21 states. They said car makers failed to prove the need for delay and were putting profits ahead of public health.

The manufacturers are saying in their applications that it is more important for the overall welfare of the nation that these companies continue to sell their polluting automobiles than that the air we breathe be made pure enough for public health," Rankin said. "In the final analysis, if they kill us, all there won't be anybody to buy cars," he added.

General Motors officials were called back Wednesday to answer why they didn't subsidize research by outside firms developing the catalytic control devices on which GM and other firms are relying to eventually meet the standards.

Ernest S. Starkman, GM's vice president for environmental activities, said the idea never occurred to him.

The standards, written into the 1970 Clean Air Act, require that 1975 model cars cut carbon monoxide and hydrocarbon emissions 90 per cent.

The Campaign

The political campaign in Magic Valley is now in full swing — with prospective candidates coming and going and giving out press releases.

One interesting part of a campaign is the activity among the lesser candidates — those who are running for the higher offices but who do not have a chance of election. Newspapers seem to bear the brunt of their campaign literature.

The press releases they hand out will usually say "spoke to a group of supporters in Twin Falls" or whatever town they happen to be in at the moment. Now the "group of supporters" could have been one person they spoke to on the street or possibly one they sat beside for a cup of coffee. And when they say that they spoke at a "meeting of so and so" you can bet it was just that — someone they happened to meet.

But that is politics. By giving the impression they have a "meeting" here and a "speaking engagement" there they hope to build up a public image of being really wanted.

But come now — most voters are not so easily taken in. A real meeting is one thing but a "press release" meeting is something else.

Only A Start

Signing of an agreement to clean up the Great Lakes by the President of the United States and the Prime Minister of Canada was historic recognition by the two countries of the task before them. In itself the agreement will mean nothing if the will and determination, and the funds, are not provided as needed to accomplish the Herculean job. Already a year has passed since the substance of the agreement was accepted. What is significant about the delay is that one-fourth the time allotted by the pact to make the lakes "clean enough for any fish to live in" already has elapsed.

Because of the mammoth task, the original timetable was unrealistic, but the months and years ahead must be nurtured more carefully if the goals are to be met. The same caution applies to the $2.5 billion provided in the agreement to finance the clean-up operation.

Four-fifths of this is to come from the U.S., which has much more industry surrounding the lakes than does Canada. But estimates of the final cost of the lakes operation are much higher than this.

To cite one example, the cost of separating storm and sanitary systems flowing into the lakes from the U. S. side has been estimated at $12 billion.

The agreement calls for much more than this, including the construction of treatment facilities for municipal and industrial wastes, reducing the discharges of phosphorous (one of the prime causes of algae growth), eliminating mercury and other toxic materials from discharges, controlling other forms of pollution (including thermal, radio-active and pesticide), preventing oil spills, and finding some means of controlling waste from sanitary sewer overflows.

Adding to the complications contributing to these problems are detergents, which account for about 70 percent of the phosphates in U. S. sewage. There is still no general, effective substitute for phosphorous in these products.

A number of problems unrelated to those outlined in the agreement need to be overcome before real progress can be achieved in the fight. But the Great Lakes agreement is a beginning unlike any which have come before.

It is the first time two nations have combined forces to launch a campaign for water purity.

The Great Lakes, among the greatest inland bodies of water in the world, deserve no less.

MR. SPECTATOR

Always It's New

Just about the time Mr. Spectator thinks he has seen everything — something else crops up. Latest "crop up" is in connection with the upcoming school election.

One of the candidates — a gal — is going all out for election. She uses stationary which has a large picture of her together with other data like where to vote, when, and what have you. With that stationary printed, she must be trying to raise quite a groundswell.

We almost forgot to mention — the campaign includes press releases — no less.

Sort of on the quaint side, ain't it? Probably the next step will be a ceiling on school board campaign expenditures.

WORD OF PRAISE

Dear Mr. Spectator:
It is with genuine humility and deep gratitude that we look at this community. When two boys were hurt and stranded in the Snake River Canyon, the number of people who gave of their time, effort, and nerve to assist in the rescue is truly impressive.

So often we hear of our unconcern and coldness in our human relationships, but certainly last Sunday's episode must reveal the great generosity of spirit here in our valley.

Dozens of people, known and unknown, helped. The police, Sheriff and fire department were magnificent and even more, kind.

Certainly everyone in the Magic Valley can look at a lot of people with pride.

We thank you all.

MARROWPRANKS

Ever see children in church suddenly give way to a seizure of the most violent type of spasms? Writing or twisting or bobbing — it doesn't matter which.

One minute they are sitting as quietly as you please. Next minute, the fit. And back they go to being angels again. A lady explained it the other day. "That's the marrowpranks," she said. "They can be pretty awful — both to feel and see."

But that word "marrowpranks?" The lady elucidated: "The marrow in children's bones just has to do something once in a while. Marrowpranks are the only outlet for their marrow has."

So don't call it the smartjacks if it's really marrowpranks. If something has to give, blame it on the marrow suddenly rebelling against its prison walls.

WASHINGTON — That "ol' gang buster, Richard Nixon, seems well on the way to being named "Police Chief of the Year." As chief magistrate of the District of Columbia, the President has achieved a record against crime even his critics find hard to knock.

Chief Nixon has the figures right here, folks. The major crime rate in Hell City has been virtually halved — reduced by 49.8 per cent — since the peak crime rate of November 1969.

The comparison is only between last month and November 1969, of course, but you still can't cavil at the improvement. Moreover, the crime rate for the first quarter of this year was 30 per cent lower than for the first three months of 1971, which strongly suggests that the good guys are continuing to gain on the bad guys.

This is not just a local story, even though it applies only to the nation's capital. It shows what can be done when the top city official takes a tough line on the crime problem. In Hell City's case, Nixon early on summoned Mayor Walter Washington and Police Chief Jerry Wilson to his office and told them bluntly they were to crack down on crime or else — the or else meaning that if they failed to make D. C. a safer city they would be looking for new jobs.

To be sure, the President gave Washington and Wilson both money and continuing moral support from the White House. The number of prosecutors was increased by nearly 50 per cent, and the size of the police force was boosted to an all-time high of 5,100 men. Court reorganization plans added more judges to both the Superior and U. S. District Courts. A campaign was mounted against dope peddlers, and facilities for the treatment of drug addicts were expanded.

Nevertheless, it seems fair to suggest that what might be called the Nixon influence has been felt elsewhere in the Republic. Thanks mostly to funds from the new Law Enforcement Assistance Administration program, one-third of the nation's cities with populations over 100,000 have reported crime rate reductions. The LEAA is Nixon's baby, and no amount of Democratic campaign rhetoric can take it away from him.

Some of this rhetoric has taken the line that things in Hell City had to get better because the capital had become a veritable jungle by 1969. Politically, this is dangerous talk. Hell City was a jungle because two successive Democratic administrations left it that way. It may be that had a Democrat been elected President in 1968, he would have done as well as Nixon did — but we'll never know, will we? At any rate, the President's pursuit of the bad guys has to be an asset to his campaign for reelection. Millions of American voters visit their capital every year, and the Nixon record tells them that at last the time appears to be approaching when they'll be able to walk down Pennsylvania Avenue without a bodyguard wielding a Tommy gun.

(My advice to these tourists still would be to avoid venturing into certain sections of the city unless enclosed in one of J. Edgar Hoover's numerous bullet-proof cars. But if they're prudent, especially after dark, they've got a 50-50 chance of surviving.)

Meanwhile, I don't know how the Muskies, McGoverns, Humphreys et al will counter Richard Nixon's achievement as a gang buster. Their only recourse would seem to be a me-too approach, promising that they can get safe streets wholesale. Lots of luck, fellows.

BOMB PATTERN

ROBERT ALLEN

Nothing But No

WASHINGTON — Sen. George McGovern is straining hard to wheedle a favorable word or nod from top labor, but without results so far. Union chiefs are either bristlingly hostile or disdainfully disparaging.

Illustrative of the former is a comment attributed to AFL-CIO president George Meany, "McGovern is no friend of labor. Basically he is a diehard Midwestern isolationist with far-left radical overtones and leanings."

A typical example of the latter attitude is the remark of a building trades leader, "McGovern isn't going anywhere. He isn't electable. He is too radical. That's why he won't be nominated even if he does win a state primary here and there. Don't forget he has so far lost more than he has won, and he will lose others."

Principal reason for labor's enmity to the South Dakotan is his support of right-to-work legislation — which is violently anathema to union men.

Years ago as a member of his state's legislature, McGovern backed a right-to-work law. He followed that up in Congress, by voting against a bill strongly pressed by labor to repeal a provision of the Taft-Hartley Act allowing states to adopt right-to-work measures.

Labor has neither forgotten nor forgiven these stands. They are still held angrily against him.

The olive branch overtures in McGovern's behalf have been made by Kennedyites — with whom he is surrounded.

In keeping with McGovern's own personal and political record of long and close affiliation with the Kennedys, all his key advisers and managers are Kennedy zealots and veterans of their campaigns. But unlike McGovern they are on good terms with laborites, and he has been using them to plead his cause.

Their efforts have been in vain. In some instances they drew irate fire.

Snapped a veteran Steelworker leader to a McGovern emissary, "Why should we be for him? He has never done anything for us. When he hasn't been outright against us, he has sat on his hands. Labor has proven friends in this race — Humphrey, Jackson, Muskie. They are the ones we are going for."

Privately, McGovern admits deep concern over labor's pronounced hostility.

However, he feels the adverse affect is much less marked in state primaries than the general election. As the South Dakotan sees it, "In primaries, unions don't go all-out the way they do in general elections. As a consequence, rank-and-file workers are more or less on their own and inclined to vote their squawks and bellyaches. There is no question the opposition of union officials is hurting, but I am inclined to think their affect is at a minimum in state primaries."

In support of this contention, the South Dakotan cites the considerable vote he got in Wisconsin labor sections.

However, he carefully ignores just as potent adverse evidence — in Florida and Illinois where he was soundly trounced and ran poorly in blue-collar precincts.

Another backstage reason labor is fighting McGovern is its goal to have a record number of union delegates at the Miami Beach convention.

RAY CROMLEY

The Split

WASHINGTON (NEA) — The current North Vietnamese invasion of the south was a compromise.

It is the culmination of a deep ideological struggle which has wracked Hanoi for two years, on what path Vietnamese communism is to follow — doctrine Marxism-Leninism or a communism modified to suit Vietnamese customs.

This fight has split the Hanoi leadership into three major groups — those who argue for a quick military solution, those who believe North Vietnam can win at the Paris peace talks with a little push, and those who favor the Mao Tse-tung theory of protracted war, with more emphasis put on rebuilding the socialist north.

The present bitter compromise is between these three. Thus the invasion has something for each. It is not a last ditch drive or a final gasp of the north. Nor is it, on the contrary, a sign of major strength. It is basically an attempt to get out of the "trilemma" outlined above.

The men who favor a quick military solution are getting a chance to try their theory — that Youth Vietnam's armies and President Thieu's government will collapse under a series of multi-pronged, hammer-like attacks at varied points in the country, followed by a multitude of guerrilla rampages and underground assassinations, followed by "spontaneous" uprisings.

The men who believe added pressure on weak points in the south at just the right time will so downgrade confidence in the Thieu government and the South Vietnamese armies, and raise such a revival of anti-war feeling in the United States that President Nixon will be forced to agree to the Communist proposals — are also getting a chance to prove their thesis.

And finally, the protracted war men are getting their opportunity. If the South Vietnamese army is so weakened in this fighting, and so occupied in the border areas fighting the north's mainline forces that the guerrillas are able to destroy a significant part of South Vietnam's local police, pacification units and local hamlet and village governments, then the way will be opened for North Vietnam to gradually rebuild the very strong underground apparatus which was largely destroyed in Tet 1968.

This would enable Hanoi to follow in South Vietnam the course which it so successfully pursued in the last half of the 1950s and the major part of the 1960s, a policy which almost won them victory.

It is interesting to note that if all three immediate objectives fail, the protracted-war group will have won.

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Poison Ivy

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am a victim of poison ivy annually, and had a moderately severe case last year.

What is the causative agent in the plant: a virus, bacteria, or chemical compounds? Does the condition spread by contact such as scratching, rubbing, or soiled clothing, or is it a circulatory thing?

I have heard of inoculations — is this a preventive or a therapeutic measure? — R. M. W.

You may want to clip out today's column and also tomorrow's, because there's a pretty fair amount to say about poison ivy and it won't all fit in one day's remarks.

First, poison ivy has nothing to do with either viruses or bacteria. It isn't a germ-related problem.

Chemical compounds? Yes. It's a resinous, saplike substance in the plant (in all parts, roots to leaves) called urushiol, from a Japanese word meaning leecher. It's of a family of chemicals called oleoresins.

Anyway, it's a sticky sort of sap, chemically similar to that of poison oak and poison sumac, all botanically part of the rhus family.

Despite many boasts, nobody is immune to poison ivy, although some folks are less sensitive than others. About half are quite sensitive to it.

It causes a "contact dermatitis" — that is, contact causes a rash, then blistering, but the speed with which the rash appears can vary, depending on the area affected and intensity of exposure.

Thus, although many people are convinced that the trouble spreads, or is carried to other skin areas by fluid from the blisters, that isn't so. The trouble breaks out where the irritating sap has touched the skin.

The first exposure to poison ivy doesn't always cause much if any trouble — but the person becomes sensitized. Then watch out for the NEXT exposure!

You can contact the sap by directly touching the stem or leaves, or by touching traces of the sap (it doesn't take much) that have adhered to clothing, tools, the fur of pets. It is well known that the poison particles can be carried in smoke from a fire; some very sensitive individuals have reported trouble from (apparently) just walking past a field where the plant grows. It is conceivable that traces of sap are carried by the wind on dust particles.

Anyway, don't expect to escape by using a rake or spade to root out poison ivy unless you take care not to touch the tools that have touched the ivy, and wash the tools afterward.

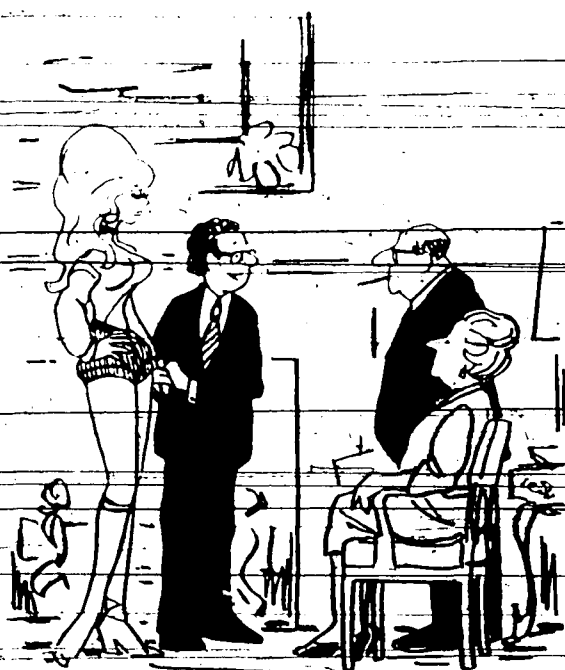

Tomorrow, we'll talk about what you can do to prevent ivy poisoning, and how it can be treated if you get it.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: For years my husband has complained of too much salt in his food. The rest of the family think there is just the right amount. He is a diabetic. Could there be something wrong with him? Please print this. It would help out a lot. — C.

Diabetes wouldn't cause it — in fact, I don't know anything that would cause it except he doesn't like as much salt. So why not cook to suit him, and let folks add what salt they like? That's what salt cellars are for.

Note to Mrs. M. S. S.: Special shoes won't help gout. A blood test will show whether your sister has elevated uric acid, which would be the important sign to look for. Gout can't be "cured" but it now can be controlled in most cases so it causes no discomfort.

Russ pressure West Germany over treaty

By K. C. THALER
LONDON (UPI)—Russia has made it clear West German failure to ratify nonaggression treaties with Moscow and Warsaw would be serious but not bring the cold war back to Europe. But European pacification and consolidation would be greatly impaired. The Kremlin guideline has come from the Soviet envoy in Paris, Pyotr Abramov, an influential Russian spokesman in Europe. Additional authoritative indications have come from Communist diplomats here, reflecting their new instructions from Moscow. The line is broadly: Bonn should ratify and thus pave the way to a speed-up in the pursuit of European security arrangements. If it fails to do so, Soviet-West German relations would be seriously affected. But Russia intends nevertheless to pursue its effort to reduce tension in Europe toward European security with whatever other Western support it can get. However, the Berlin accord, negotiated by the Big Four powers—the United States, Britain, France and Russia—will continue to hang fire. So will the accords reached between Bonn and East Germany on Berlin. What practical effect this has on the life of Berlin is a matter the Russians apparently have not so far determined, leaving the door open for whatever measures they will see fit to impose as time goes on. On the other hand, Moscow has been left in no doubt by the West that failure to finalize the Berlin agreement would mean no European security conference on which the Communist bloc has set its heart and from which Moscow expects the recognition.

U.S. musk oxen have troubles

By HANS-JOACHIM BARG-MANN

DPA Peking Correspondent PEKING (UPI-DPA) — The two American musk oxen President Nixon presented to the Peking zoo in February are suffering from an infectious skin disease and present a miserable picture to the Chinese public, zoo officials said today.

The disease has caused the oxen, three-year-old Mathilda and Milton, aged 18 months, to shed most of their body hair. Nevertheless the Chinese are displaying them in an open paddock where Milton in particular appears extremely dejected.

Thousands of Chinese zoo visitors flock daily to see the American animals. They make remarks about their sorry condition.

Chinese veterinarians diagnosed the "infectious, feverish skin disease" shortly after the oxen arrived in Peking. They say the animals must have had the disease at the time they arrived.

The vets have been painting a sulphur solution on the wounds caused by the infection. But with Mathilda especially they are having a hard time because the ox is wild and nervous and does not like people approaching her.

Nevertheless, zoo officials said, there has been a recent improvement in the animals' condition.

President Nixon presented the oxen to the Peking zoo during his visit in February and in return Premier Chou En-lai presented a pair of rare giant pandas to America.

London's Downing Street, whose No. 10 is the home of British prime ministers, was developed by Sir George Downing.

Wrong notions

NEW YORK (UPI) — When it comes to health, most Americans know a lot less than they think they know, says the Health Insurance Institute. Among the wrong notions held by most Americans are: a steady diet of red meat can cause high blood pressure; the primary cause of diabetes is eating too much sugar; rapid pulse, fatigue, low blood pressure are warning signs of a possible stroke. All these statements are false.

Methodists take stands on doctrine

ATLANTA (UPI)—Homosexuals were condemned, draft resisters supported and a redistribution of the wealth sought Wednesday at the general conference of the United Methodist Church.

The stands came in a document of social principles adopted by the 1,000 delegates representing 11 million Methodists around the world.

"We assert the duties of churches to support everyone who suffers from cause of conscience and urge the government to seriously consider restoration of rights to such persons while also maintaining respect for those who obey," the doctrine said.

"We support... those... who oppose all war or any particular war and who, therefore, refuse to serve in the armed services."

"We support measures that would reduce the concentration of wealth in the hands of the few," the delegates also said.

"We further support efforts to revise the tax structure and eliminate governmental support programs that now benefit the wealthy at the expense of other persons."

The delegates said that homosexuality was "incompatible" with Christian doctrine and they disapproved of homosexual marriages.

Dr. Robert Monn of Sacramento, Calif., who first gave the Methodists a report calling for guaranteeing rights for homosexuals, said no attempt was being made to answer the question as to the normality of homosexuality.

He said the report merely showed concern for homosexuals.

The social doctrine also:

—Approved women having abortions only after "thorough and thoughtful consideration made by the parties involved, with medical and pastoral counsel."

—Supported the right of public and private employees to organize for collective bargaining.

—Disapproved gambling as a "menace to society" and included in that church charities and public lotteries.

—Urged government support for guaranteeing the right to adequate food, clothing, shelter, education and health care.

—And supported full rights for women.

Angela's diary again refused

SAN JOSE, Calif. (UPI)—The Angela Davis jury was dismissed for the week Wednesday after the prosecution attempted to place in evidence an edited version of a previously rejected 18-page "diary" found in the cell of "Soledad Brother" George Jackson.

Prosecutor Albert W. Harris Jr. said the document was of "critical importance" to the state's case that Miss Davis was so in love with the slain convict she plotted the Marin County kidnappings to gain his release.

Harris indicated previously that it contained references to a passionate "physical involvement" between the former UCLA philosophy instructor and the black revolutionary author.

The pair had only one meeting, with their attorneys present, in a Marin County holding cell a year after the Aug. 7, 1970 kidnappings and shootings, in which a judge and four others died.

Judge Richard E. Arnason earlier in the week ruled admissible as evidence three so-called love letters from 28-year-old Miss Davis to Jackson, but said the lengthy diary-type document was "immaterial" to the case.

At the time, he said he might entertain a motion by Harris to present an edited version.

Brandt defeats oust attempt

BONN (UPI)—West German Chancellor Willy Brandt today defeated an opposition drive to oust him from office.

Bolstered by a last-minute traffic agreement with East Germany and expressions of support from Moscow, Brandt weathered a no confidence vote put forth in Parliament by opposition Christian Democrats, who fell two ballots short of the 249 needed for passage.

Kleindienst recalled for final questioning

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Senate Judiciary Committee today called Richard G. Kleindienst back for a third and probably final time for questioning on which his confirmation as attorney general could hinge.

One pertinent area the committee sought an explanation for arose from Kleindienst's appearance before the panel March 8 when he said "I had no conversation with" White House aide Peter Flanagan involving an antitrust suit against International Telephone & Telegraph.

This appeared to conflict with Flanagan's statement, in an April 21 letter to the committee, which said he "passed on to" Kleindienst a conversation he had with an ITT director shortly before the Justice Department settled the antitrust suit out of court.

On a 5 to 3 vote Wednesday, the committee decided to extend the hearings only until 5 p.m. today to question Kleindienst about inconsistencies in earlier testimony centering around his nomination and his role in the ITT affair.

The Committee first approved Kleindienst's nomination unanimously Feb. 29 and recommended the Senate confirm him, but that same day columnist Jack Anderson published a memorandum attributed to ITT lobbyist Dita D. Beard linking the out-of-court settlement to an ITT offer to contribute $200,000 to this summer's Republican National Convention.

The next day Anderson disclosed that Kleindienst—former deputy attorney general—had several private meetings with Felix M. Rohatyn, an ITT director. Rohatyn induced Kleindienst to request the antitrust division, headed by Richard W. McLaren, to listen to Rohatyn's arguments against forcing ITT to give up Hartford Fire Insurance Co. in settlement of the suit.

McLaren listened and changed his mind about suing ITT to force it to give up Hartford.

Mrs. McCabe readies to deliver demands

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Mrs. Irene McCabe, in agony from sore feet after a 620-mile walk from Michigan, was ready to hike the last few blocks to Capitol Hill today to deliver her demand for an end to forced school busing.

The Pontiac, Mich., housewife, joined by similar antibusing marchers from Richmond, Va., said she expected hundreds of other supporters from across the country to be at her side today when she crossed Memorial Bridge into the District of Columbia.

But the last few miles in the Washington suburbs Wednesday took their toll. She had planned to reach the Virginia side of the bridge by evening but was forced instead to stop short to seek medical help for her feet.

"I simply could not bear the pain any longer," she said. "It has been this way for almost two weeks. Every step, I don't know for how many days, has just been agony."

Mrs. McCabe and her supporters carried a petition asking Congress to approve a constitutional amendment against school busing for integration—an approach which President Nixon has already rejected as too time consuming. Nixon instead has asked Congress to pass a law against busing and to spend more money to help improve urban schools to provide equality in education.

Mrs. McCabe and the six mothers in her party left March 15. Rep. Jack H. McDonald, R-Mich., said he had arranged for them to meet with presidential adviser John D. Erlichman at the White House Friday.

Rep. Norman Lent, R-N.Y., sponsor of the proposed constitutional amendment, admitted Wednesday that his effort has been shoved "on the back burner" by Nixon's support for the other approaches. A drive to force his amendment-out-of-committee for floor action has drawn only 152 of the needed 218 signatures.

In another development, Negro members of the administration, organized as "The Council of Black Appointees," attacked the President's moves against busing. They said Nixon's request for a moratorium on busing was probably unconstitutional, although they saw no useful purpose in opposing it.

The group was more critical of Justice Department intervention in school desegregation cases now before the courts.

Intervention in the Denver, Detroit, Richmond and Nashville cases has already had a chilling effect on black people.

Former hospital use plan asked

BOISE (UPI) — The permanent building fund advisory council ordered Wednesday creation of a "master plan" for the use of St. Alphonsus Hospital and approved work leading to a move to a new prison site by May, 1974.

The state will assume ownership of the now vacant St. Alphonsus Hospital May 15. Still undecided is which state agency will assume legal responsibility for the building intended to eventually house state agencies.

Members of the State Board of Corrections and Director of Corrections Raymond May appeared to outline use of the $1.1 million each year for the next two years for a liquor surcharge dedicated to construction at the new prison site.

The move to the new penal complex is scheduled for 1974 following construction of perimeter guard facilities and several buildings.

The council approved extension of the state's heating tunnel from the central heating plant to the hospital and to Marion Hall, an adjacent building occupied by the blind commission.

But without figures on how much — if any — money will be available to remodel the hospital, the council postponed any decision on which agencies will be moved into the building. Presently the state spends about $14,000 per month in the Boise area for non-state-owned office space.

Glen Cline, Boise architect, said one section of the hospital built in the early 1950s was "sound and has a reasonable life with some remodeling." He said it could be used for 15 to 25 years.

He said the section built in 1902 could be remodeled to be used for five or 10 years, but said the section built in the 1800s "really has pretty well outlived its usefulness."

The newest section, he said, contained 45,000 square feet of usable space.

May gave the council a project sheet for the penitentiary which indicated the move could be made in May of 1974 once the vocational education building, clinic, administrative building, perimeter guard system and remodeling in the reception diagnostic center to accommodate mental cases are completed.

The council authorized bidding the $57,000 vocational education building within a week of ten days, authorized working drawings on a multi-use building to be bid in February, 1973, and authorized working drawings for remodeling the reception and diagnostic center, originally planned as a women's dormitory.

Sen. Warren Brown, R-McCall, told May the legislature by approving the liquor surcharge declared its intent to move as quickly as possible into the new penal complex.

One board member, William Dee, Grangeville, agreed, adding "now we're funded and we want to get going... we've been four years at this damned thing now and it always seems like someone else is getting in ahead of us."

When completed, the facility will cost nearly $14 million.

In other action, the council:

— Approved final plans for married student housing at Boise State College. The funds for the project are from a federal loan underwritten by the college.

— The council approved a preliminary study and appointment of an architect for a proposed move of the state's auditor's office from the capitol building to the state office building.

— Architect Max Call, Idaho Falls, was approved to complete the final plans for cottages at the Idaho Youth Training Center.

— The council granted permission for State Treasurer Marjorie Ruth Moom to appoint an architect to remodel her office in the capitol building.

Spending 'watch' ordered

BOISE (UPI) — With a hard eye on general fund revenues, Gov. Cecil D. Andrus has asked state agency heads to watch spending in case money is needed to balance the general fund June 10.

During a session called to explain the new "program" approach to general fund budgeting, Andrus reminded the agency heads Wednesday he had released a one per cent holdback first ordered in November 1971, at the suggestion of "some members of the legislature who felt there would be ample funds."

But, he said, revenue estimates look no different now than they did in November. He said he would have complete figures by June 1, giving him one month in which to determine how much may be needed to balance the general fund.

"Don't just spend that because you have it," he said. "We may very well need that one per cent on a portion of it when it comes time to balance the budget."

Andrus also told agency heads any information requested by the legislature must be routed through the budget director's office.

Andrus said the new "program" approach to budgeting — which will allocate the money on the basis of services provided or programs performed by agencies — will more clearly demonstrate to the people of the state where the money is going.

Anti-VD campaign planned for Idaho

BOISE (UPI) — The preventive medicine division of the Department of Health announced Wednesday it will conduct a statewide conference at Boise State College May 2-3 under the theme of "Gonorrhea — Who Cares?"

Arthur Boyle, director of the state's venereal disease control program, said it is hoped new ideas to combat the growing problem will come out of the session attended by church and PTA representatives, physicians, school personnel, students and other interested persons.

He said it will be the first time a statewide conference on the epidemic has been planned, and said much of the conference discussion will center on methods of preventing the disease.

A total of 542 gonorrhea cases have been reported so far this year, compared to 349 for the same period last year. Boyle said 75 per cent of all reported cases fall into the 15-29 year old bracket, and said more and more youngsters under 15 are coming down with the disease.

Pocatello strike off

POCATELLO (UPI) — Members of the Pocatello Firefighters Local 743 voted Wednesday night to rescind their strike vote.

Spokesmen said 59 of the 61 members attended the meeting. They did not report the exact tally on rescinding the strike vote but said the motion carried by better than a two-thirds majority.

Wednesday night's action followed a two-hour session during the afternoon between the fire fighters and the City Council.

Meet slated

BOISE (UPI) — The statewide convention of the Idaho Genealogical Society has been scheduled in the genealogical library of the state library building May 13.

Marvin Benson, president of the society, said the guest speaker would be Ronald Bremer, research specialist with the Salt Lake City Genealogical Society, whose specific area of assignment is the New England and eastern states.

Canal breaks

BLACKFOOT (UPI) — The Aberdeen-Springfield Canal broke west of Springfield, washing over fields and county roads and leaving water a foot deep on State Highway 30.

Robert Lee, Aberdeen, Bingham County commissioner, said water was shut off where the canal takes the water from the Snake River near Firth, but said water would probably flood through the canal break all night.

He said the Aberdeen-Springfield Canal Co. would repair the canal before county and state crews could work on the road.

Gem board choice due

BOISE (UPI) — Gov. Cecil D. Andrus said Wednesday he will fill the one vacancy on the board of Health shortly and will choose two new members to sit in an advisory capacity until July 1.

On July 1, the Health Department will become the Department of Environmental Protection and Health.

Andrus said he is also interviewing candidates for the new health administrator's post. The new law provides for the administrator to be appointed by the governor rather than the board.

FINAL PLANS for the TOPS AND KOPS activities during this weekend's convention at the CSI are made by Mrs. Beverly Burns, left; Mrs. Ollimae Armstrong, TOPS area captain, and Mrs. Werner Kramer, convention chairman. All are from Twin Falls which now has five clubs, with the first club organized to be the oldest in Idaho.

Crowning of state TOPS queen set for TF meet

TWIN FALLS — Idaho State Queen for 1971 will be crowned Saturday morning during the second day of the TOPS and KOPS Recognition Day this weekend.

A luncheon will follow during which time royalty will be honored at the College of Southern Idaho gymnasium and an awards assembly will highlight the Saturday afternoon sessions. During that time the five-year pendants to KOPS members who have maintained their weight at goals set by their doctors will be presented.

Ollimae Armstrong, Twin Falls, is TOPS area captain, and Deloris Sims, Pocatello, is Idaho supervisor. Mrs. Werner Kramer, Twin Falls, is chairman for the state convention with Mrs. Beverly Burns, Twin Falls, co-chairman. Mrs. Burns will be toastmistress for the luncheons and awards banquet.

The Idaho Take Off Pounds Sensibly Chapter 3 is the oldest club in Idaho. It was chartered Oct. 27, 1959, and its first leader was Mrs. Grace York who had moved to Idaho from California. Twin Falls now has five active chapters.

Mrs. J. H. Sharp and Mrs. Charles F. McClain were the first "Keep Off Pounds-Sensibly" graduates from Twin Falls in 1960. Mrs. Albert Mayer, Twin Falls, was the first Idaho state queen with a loss of 87 pounds, and attended the 1961 annual convention of TOPS Clubs, Inc., held in Milwaukee.

The convention this weekend will get underway at 12:30 p.m. Friday with registration, followed by the welcome by Twin Falls city mayor, John Christoffersen, O. A. (Gus) Kelker will be the afternoon's speaker. A workshop from 3 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. will be followed by the KOPS recognition banquet and graduation ceremony.

The Valley High Drill Team will open the Saturday morning events. Mrs. Joyce Harding, Piler, is music director for the two days. Dr. Benjamin L. Briggs will speak Saturday afternoon.

"TOPS first came into being in 1948 when it was founded in Milwaukee by Esther S. Manz who felt there was a great need for an organization to help the overweight.

It has no commercial interests but concerns itself entirely with relief from excess poundage and the study of its underlying causes. It is based on the principle of "group therapy" where people who have the same problems get together to discuss them frankly without fear of being laughed at or misunderstood.

It is not a course of short duration but is a planned, continuing program where members get their weight goals and diets from their own doctors.

Members may lose from 10 to more than 100 pounds. When they have reached their ideal weight goals, they graduate to the "Keep Off Pounds Sensibly" group.

Change expected toward Cuba

PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst
Partly as a spin-off from President Nixon's endeavors to improve relations with China and the Soviet Union, among Latin American nations there is recurring speculation that a change in the U.S. attitude toward Cuba also is in the works.

Secretary of State William P. Rogers helped to fuel it earlier this month when he told the second General Assembly of the Organization of American States in Washington that the United States "of course would act in concert with our fellow members in the OAS" if a change in Cuban policy should justify reconsideration of economic and diplomatic sanctions against her.

At the same meeting, the Peruvian foreign minister, Brig. Gen. Antel de la Flor Valle, expressed what appears to be a developing view point among Latin American nations when he criticized the "perpetuation of the isolation of Cuba."

He did not present the issue formally but promised to do so later on.

The OAS voted sanctions against Cuba in 1964 after discovery of a Cuban arms cache on the coast of Venezuela.

Several Latin American countries complained against Cuban attempts at subversion, and on July 25, 1964, the organization voted 15 to 3 for sanctions. Chile, Mexico and Uruguay opposed and Bolivia abstained.

Since that time, membership in the OAS has increased to 23 without Cuba and it is believed that at least eight now would favor lifting the bans in a formal vote. They are Chile, Trinidad-Tobago, Peru, Jamaica, Mexico, Barbados, Panama and possibly Ecuador.

Mexico continued its relations with Cuba despite the OAS vote, and Chile resumed them last year. Several others, including Peru, have resumed economic contacts.

Despite White House denials a rumor has gained strength among Cuban exiles that presidential aide Henry Kissinger ger recently made a secret visit to Cuba while ostensibly on a Mexican vacation. The State Department also has warned against any thought that a door is being opened for Castro. The official U.S. view is that sanctions cannot be lifted so long as Cuba retains its close military ties with the Soviet Union and so long as it espouses the export of its own revolution to other Latin American lands.

Giving force to State Department and White House warnings that no immediate change is in prospect was the disclosure in mid-April that Nixon had ordered U.S. warships in the Caribbean to prevent by force if necessary Cuban seizure of merchant vessels of countries "friendly" to the United States.

The order resulted from Cuban seizure last December of two merchantmen operating out of Miami under Panamanian registration.

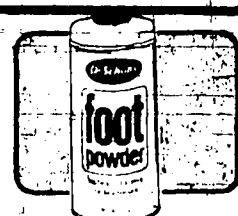

Castro himself, now approaching seniority among Latin American dictators, has predicted a new era of friendship with the United States but not as long as Nixon remains President. The Cuban economy remains tightly bound to the Soviet Union. Castro is now believed to owe Moscow something like $4 billion, with the total mounting by more than $2 million per day.

DOWNTOWN ON THE MALL

Kissinger unveils another secret jaunt

(Editor's note: The author of the following story tells how it was possible for Henry Kissinger to be in Moscow when reporters covering the President were writing that he was at Camp David.)

By ROBERT F. BUCKHORN
WASHINGTON (UPI)—He is known as "the man on the mountain," or simply as "him."

The woman who runs the motel at the foot of the mountain tells a newsman she has a friend who works "up there" and the friend says "HE will be leaving Monday."

At the bar in the best restaurant in the tiny town of Thurmont, Md., young Marines, out of uniform but easily identifiable by their close shaven heads, talk about the dates they had to break because "HE came up this weekend."

"The man" is President Nixon, and the place is Camp David, Md., a very private world, and one ideally suited to serve as cover for presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger's Moscow mission.

When Nixon's helicopter settles on the Catochin Mountain ridge 70 miles north of Washington, he is isolated from the public eye.

Newsman trailing in his wake, if they get enough notice, may make it to the top of the mountain to see his helicopter land. That is usually the last glimpse of the President until he boards the helicopter to return to Washington.

This is what happened last Thursday, the first day of Nixon's stay at Camp David. He left the White House on short notice and there was no chance for newsmen to watch his arrival at Camp David.

Then, a White House spokesman reported Friday that Nixon had been joined by Kissinger and two other special assistants, John Erlichman and H. R. Haldeman. They were, the White House said, working "on a wide range of foreign and domestic matters."

The reporters, quartered in a motel at the bottom of the mountain, passed the word along to newspaper readers. The next day, Saturday, the story was the same. The President and Kissinger were at work on the same "wide range of foreign and domestic matters." But Kissinger, as the White House admitted Tuesday, actually was in Moscow.

Kissinger, his Moscow mission complete, slipped into the heavily fortified camp Monday unnoticed by newsmen who waited patiently at the motel for word from the White House that the President would be returning to Washington.

Finally, at about 8:30 p.m. Monday, the White House alerted the newsmen. The President would be leaving in about one hour. The newsmen piled into cars and raced up the mountain to Camp David and were quickly ushered to the President's helicopter pad.

Minutes later, Nixon and Kissinger appeared, in animated conversation. They boarded the waiting helicopter in what appeared to be simply the end of a weekend of work and rest.

He discarded a club on dummy's ace of spades. ruffed a spade led a club from his hand, noted that Donalbane played the 10 so he finessed dummy's jack.

Things were looking up. He led dummy's last spade and ruffed.

This left him with one trump less than West. He cashed dummy's ace of clubs, led a diamond to his king and another diamond to dummy's queen.

Donalbane was down to trumps and had to ruff in on the next lead. Then he had to lead away from his jack and the great MacDuff had triumphed again.

Of course, it wasn't too great a triumph. The way the cards lay seven no-trump would make MacDuff, the best player in Scotland, was a big happy with the dummy. For once MacBoth had bid his hand so that MacDuff could play it and the slam looked like a mighty good one.

He won the diamond lead with dummy's ace and played the king of hearts. Banquo, sitting East, discarded a spade and all of a sudden the slam looked as if it were doomed to defeat.

Could it be made? MacDuff saw that there was a chance if Donalbane, sitting West, held exactly the right cards. A slim chance, is far better than none and MacDuff proceeded to give the cards their chance to work.

Instead of passing one heart, your partner has bid two diamonds. What do you do now?

news about the people you know
Valley Living

DEAR ABBY: I must comment on mothers who go thru their teen-agers' drawers and read their personal mail. Don't they know that the way to teach their children to respect the privacy of others is to practice it? You also teach love by practicing it.

I raised three children, and they always came to me with their little problems because they knew that I would always listen, and comfort them even when they did wrong, and not condemn. Maybe that is why they never had any big problems.

I know a mother who kicked her 17-year-old daughter out of the house because she found out she had had a love affair. Kicked her own daughter right out into the street! Of course the poor child went to live with her boy friend. Where else? She soon became pregnant, and then her mother cried, "I tried to be a good mother. . . how could she do this to ME?"

I just don't understand some people, Abby.

BAFFLED IN SIOUX CITY, IOWA
DEAR ABBY: That makes two of us. (P. S. Some of the most wonderful mothers in the world raised their families in your town. Mine did.)

DEAR ABBY: The letter from "REAL SUFFERER" could have been written by my husband a few years ago. He, too, thought I was a hypochondriac because I was constantly complaining about my health, couldn't sleep and couldn't stay awake and was always taking pills. Then I discovered RECOVERY, INC.

This self-help group taught me specific techniques for handling all the problems that husband outlined in his letter: preoccupation with symptoms, pessimism, sleeplessness, overactive imagination, self-diagnosis, nervousness, etc.

You would do your readers a service by telling them about RECOVERY, INC. It is in its 35th year with 825 groups in the U. S. and Canada.

A FORMER HYPOCHONDRIAC
DEAR FORMER: I investigated this organization and have found them to be everything you said they were. Free literature is available by writing to RECOVERY, INC., 116 S. MICHIGAN AVENUE, CHICAGO, ILLINOIS 60603.

DEAR ABBY: I am in serious trouble. Several years ago I stopped filing income tax returns. The reason? A silent one-man protest against the use of my money to kill or to provide others with the weapons to kill.

Abby, I am a veteran of World War II, with a long hospital record behind me, and I know what war can do to young men.

When I made my decision, I also went back to church to work as best I could for peace and understanding among men.

I feel now that I have accomplished nothing except to place myself, and those who depend on me, in great jeopardy. For I now understand that by failing to file income tax returns I am facing a possible prison sentence and heavy fines, for which I have no money to pay.

The strain is affecting me both mentally and physically. Can you help me or tell me where I can receive advice?

Please don't advise going to my priest. I know his views concerning such situations, although I feel I have done nothing wrong other than to refuse to contribute my money for war and destruction while millions in this world are dying for lack of food.

TRIED AND FAILED
DEAR TRIED: You strike me as being far too intelligent to suddenly "understand" that failure to file income tax returns is a federal offense, punishable by prison and fines. I advise you to see a lawyer.

CONFIDENTIAL TO ALMOST EVERYBODY: You will be much better company if you remember one elementary rule: Never interrupt anyone when he is talking.

TF County 4-H'ers plan fashion show

by MARJORIE LIERMAN
Times-News Writer
TWIN FALLS — The latest fashions will be modeled by 4-H Builders Club members at a style show Saturday evening in the Bishop Rhea Auditorium. The fashion show will begin at 8 p.m. in the auditorium of the Episcopal Church of the Ascension. Clothes will be furnished by The Mayfair Shop and Roper's, both Twin Falls. The 20 girls and 10 boys, who will model the 40 complete outfits, are members of the club made up of 4-H club members 14 years and older in Twin Falls County. Many of the members have belonged to 4-H clubs for years and are now serving as junior leaders. Theme for the style show will be "Cherish" and Rusty Jessor, Twin Falls Club president, will serve as master of ceremonies. Proceeds from the show will go to provide a 4-H leaders recognition dinner later in the year. Most 4-H club leaders and junior leaders work tirelessly through the year with little praise or recognition, and of course, no pay. The dinner is the annual highlight for the group when they receive some recognition for their efforts, according to Richard Fuehrer, county 4-H Club agent. Clothing shown will range from business wear, evening dress, casual and sportswear. The models will show styles preferred by conservative members of the "Establishment," as well as the more colorful garments preferred by the young generation. Models will include Patti Quigley, Debbie Cox, Linda Ripa, Nancy Reese, Susan Southwick, Phyllis Britt, Derry Fender, Lola VanZante, Cindy Williamson, Robin Carle and Cheryl Armstrong. DESIGNATION of Sept. 3-9 as Idaho Hereford Week in conjunction with Register of Merit Hereford show at Filer was announced today by Gov. Cecil D. Andrus, center, and co-chairmen of show, John Hayes, Rockland, left, and Tom Shouse, Filer, right.

Big Hereford show returns to Filer

FILER — The Twin Falls County Fairgrounds will be the site of a Register of Merit Hereford show on Sept. 8.

This is the second successive year the show will be conducted in conjunction with the Twin Falls County Fair.

Officials of the Idaho Hereford Breeders Association today announced plans for the show, which they described as "the ultimate showing for the Hereford breed of beef cattle." The show is seldom seen in the northwest.

Co-chairmen for the show are John Hayes, Rockland, president of the Idaho Hereford Breeders Association; Bob Howard, Murtaugh, a director of the association, and Tom Shouse, Filer, manager of the Twin Falls County Fair and Rodeo.

Last year's show attracted 233 head of nationally known Hereford show cattle from herds in twelve states. Interest was high, and officials were gratified at the heavy turn out of spectators. The show this year is slated to be bigger and better. Many Idaho Purebred Hereford Breeders will be competing with out-of-staters for the $10,000 in prize money.

Show officials said Filer has proved an ideal place to hold a Register of Merit show because the show is on a grass field instead of indoors and show cattle can be shown more naturally. Filer also boasts plenty of room for the show, lots of grandstand seating, and excellent weather during September.

Show entries are open now and will close Aug. 15. Entry fee is $5 per head. Premium books will be available at a later date. For further information contact Tom Shouse, Twin Falls County Fairgrounds, Filer, Idaho 83328.

Biggest US fly factory saves stockmen millions

MISSION, Tex. (UPI)—The world's largest fly factory, situated on an abandoned military installation near the U.S.-Mexican border, is saving cattlemen in the Southwest more than $90 million a year.

Officially headquarters for the U.S. Department of Agriculture's screwworm eradication program, the center is sterilizing 160 million male screwworm flies a week through use of atomic energy to halt the cattle pest along the border.

The program, with a recent $500 million increase allotted by the Nixon Administration, costs $6.5 million a year to operate. But Dr. M. E. Meadows, director, says the investment has all but eliminated the screwworm as a major threat to the cattle industry.

Before the eradication program started in 1962, cattlemen were losing an estimated $100 million a year. This past year, only 473 cases of screwworms were confirmed in the entire continental United States. Before 1962, the figure surpassed one billion cases a year.

Screwworms officially were declared eradicated in this country in 1965, three years after the sterile fly treatment began along the border, but yearly buildups of the pest in Mexico require constant vigilance in border states.

Thirty-five airplanes based at old Moore Air Field near Mission and at Douglas, Ariz., daily parachute boxes of male flies to form a protective grid from Brownsville, Tex., to San Diego, Calif.

"The President has asked $2 million in next year's budget to start eradication in Mexico," Meadows said. "If the barrier were at the Isthmus of Tehuantepec, the program would cost just $2 million a year."

This would entail ridding all but the most southern tip of Mexico of screwworms.

"Sterile fly treatment is most effective," Meadows said. "But what we have in the U.S. depends on what they had in Mexico."

Starting in April, 1971, the huge fly factory began transporting 2.4 million sterile males a week to Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands for an eradication program in the two U.S. Caribbean possessions.

Fertile female screwworm flies seek out wounds in warm-blooded animals in which to lay their eggs. The navel of newly born range calves are especially susceptible. Once the eggs hatch into tiny worms, the animal is quickly infected and dies without treatment.

The original screwworm program was a joint effort between the Southwest Animal Health Commission and Mexican ranchers. Last year Mexican ranchers agreed to pay a special tax to finance an improved eradication program south of the border, but the magnitude of the problem apparently has not halted the yearly migration of the fertile flies northward.

Aide scores farm press focus

BY BERNARD BRENNER
UPI Farm Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The farm press is mistakenly spending much of its time rehashing 20-year-old parity battles when it should be focusing on a "new agenda" of problems affecting people, according to a top administration economist.

"Sometimes when I read (farm) stories, it seems the headline should read 1952 and not 1972," Don Paarlberg told the Newspaper Farm Editors of America convention.

"You will never build up a wide readership with stories which are 20 years old the day they were written, and which deal with a declining share of the income of a declining number of people," Paarlberg said.

Paarlberg, a veteran of service in both the Eisenhower and Nixon administrations, is now director of economics in the Agriculture Department. A former professor of agricultural economics at Purdue University, he has been widely known in farm policy and economic circles for many years.

Paarlberg told the NFEA meeting that farm editors have, for nearly 40 years, been writing about farm commodity programs, parity prices and farm income; but the "farm policy agenda" is changing, he said, and "I don't always note awareness of these changes when I read the farm press."

The changes, Paarlberg said, come from the declining importance of commodity programs to farm and rural people, and the rise of public interest in subjects such as overall economic development of rural areas, environmental concerns, food programs and battles over who will control the agriculture of the future.

Paarlberg said interest in farm commodity support programs is less widespread than in the past because 80 per cent of the benefits go to 1.1 million farms with annual sales of $10,000 or more. These farms, he said, cover only 38 per cent of the farm population, 7 per cent of the rural population, and 2 per cent of the national population.

In addition, he said, all farmers as a group now get more money from non-farm jobs than from sales of farm products. On smaller farms, off-farm income far exceeds money earned from agriculture — a factor which makes debates over farm income less important, the economist said.

"Off-farm income is not only the best farm crop; it is better than all the farm crops combined, plus all the livestock, plus all the government payments — if anyone has written this story, I haven't seen it," Paarlberg said.

The evidence that a "new agenda" is arising, Paarlberg said, can be found in current congressional interest in general rural economic development, the environment, and similar topics. It can also be found in the Agriculture Department budget which includes $4 billion in food aid for needy people and school children and some $2 billion in government-insured rural housing loans.

The public, Paarlberg said, is "increasingly doubting the validity" of farm subsidy programs because they widen the spread between rich and poor farmers. When a newsman asked if cutbacks in farm subsidies wouldn't hurt small growers as well, Paarlberg replied:

"I think the public is saying they don't want to give thousands of dollars to big farmers in order to put nickels and dimes into the pockets of small farmers."

Paarlberg indicated he feels continuing heavy attention to commodity programs instead of newer concerns is a "charade."

"There has been participation in this charade by many people, including myself," the official said. "I guess I'm a little tired of playing charades."

To the farm writers, after charging that the old farm parity formula has lost its meaning as an economic indicator, he added:

"Can it be that farm writers, having finally come to understand how parity is calculated, are committed to writing about it for the rest of their lives?"

EPA's poison ban hit by sheep men

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) was accused Tuesday of using "gestapo tactics" in banning the use of poisons for killing coyotes and other predators which kill livestock.

The charge was made by Edwin E. Marsh, executive secretary of the National Wool Growers Association, in testimony before the House Agriculture Committee on legislation which would require the government to pay ranchers for animals lost to predators.

Marsh, from Salt Lake City, accused the EPA and the Nixon administration as a whole of "bowing to emotional outcries and unsubstantiated claims made by misinformed people" in imposing the ban on poisons.

Marsh, in a prepared statement, charged that the EPA was guilty of "gestapo" tactics in banning registration of toxic chemicals for predator control and in subpoenaing records of chemical firms.

President Nixon issued an order on Feb. 8 to ban use of cyanide, strychnine and sodium monofluoroacetate — known as "1080" — for predator control on federal lands.

Marsh and other spokesmen for sheep ranchers and cattlemen found a sympathetic audience in chairman W. R. Poage, D-Tex., and other members of the Agriculture Committee.

Poage said losses to predators due to a ban on the use of poisons would be the equivalent of taking private property by the government and thus subject to a constitutional requirement for compensation.

Others criticizing the ban included Bill Sims, executive secretary of the Texas Sheep and Goat Raisers Association of San Angelo, Tex., and C. H. Devaney, a lobbyist for the American Farm Bureau Federation.

No spokesmen for conservationists appeared to testify in support of the ban, although a spokesman for the committee said they had been invited to appear.

TF man heads employees group

JEROME — Wayne King, Twin Falls, was elected Tuesday night as president of the Magic Valley chapter of the Idaho State Employees Association.

Alex Shafer, Jerome, was elected vice president; Mrs. Linda Ekren, secretary, and Ed Scholes, treasurer, both Jerome.

Alternates to the general council of the association to be held in June at Coeur d'Alene are Clarence Smith, Twin Falls; John Perfect, Jerome; and Jim Hall, Gooding.

In other business, several resolutions were passed by the chapter to be presented at the general council. They included one asking that the minimum allowance of $6 per day for meals within the state and $7.50 per day outside be raised to the actual and necessary expenses with a more realistic maximum amount.

They also asked that the 10 cents per mile allowance for private autos used in state business be raised to 12 cents per mile.

A resolution asked that the 10-step longevity pay plan be changed to give benefits for state employees for long years of service. The present plan compensates for future longevity but not for past service.

The chapter also passed a resolution to request the association's board of directors to endorse and support the total "no-fault" insurance system, and urged the passage of legislation to place this system in effect.

Moratorium on busing rapped

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration's highest ranking black officials Wednesday advised President Nixon that his busing moratorium plan is "undesirable," of doubtful constitutionality and a threat to fuel a growing distrust of government among Negroes.

The President's Council of Black Appointees submitted a report proposing sweeping changes in Nixon's legislative proposals to restrict the powers of the courts to order busing as a remedy for racial school segregation.

In a covering letter to Nixon, Samuel C. Jackson, general assistant secretary of Housing and Urban Development, also sharply opposed the administration's intervention in school desegregation cases now before the courts.

Jackson commented: "Intervention in the Denver, Detroit, Richmond and Nashville cases has already had a chilling effect on black people and others, inasmuch as it is made to appear that the resources of the federal government, under your leadership, are coming down on the side of those who stand in opposition to the constitutional rights of minority school children.

"Should further intervention occur, this chilling effect can only increase to the freezing point, polarizing blacks and whites on opposite sides of an ever-widening gulf, educationally, economically and politically."

The council's report and Jackson's letter were made public Wednesday by the White House after John D. Ehrlichman, Nixon's top domestic affairs adviser, referred to it in calling for prompt congressional action on the administration's antibusing legislation. He predicted Congress would take an up or down vote on the moratorium measure this session.

Ehrlichman praised the council for "working in an extremely constructive way" on behalf of revisions in the legislation.

Former U.S. aide, 73, dies

FLINT, Mich. (UPI) — Former Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield, credited with engineering President Dwight D. Eisenhower's election in 1952 and an early confidant of President Nixon, died Wednesday.

Summerfield was 73. He died at 4:25 a.m. at Good Samaritan hospital in West Palm Beach, Fla., where he had a resort home. He had been hospitalized since April 6 with a heart ailment.

Known as "Mr. Michigan Republican," Summerfield was a prominent behind-the-scenes political force nationally and a highly successful businessman, heading one of the nation's largest Chevrolet dealerships.

In 1952, Summerfield threw Michigan support to Eisenhower, at the Republican national convention and was given much of the credit for the convention's nomination of Eisenhower over Sen. Robert Taft of Ohio.

Seven Day Adventists live six years longer

By DUSTON HARVEY SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Seventh Day Adventists, who don't drink or smoke and eat less meat than the average American, are rewarded with six additional years of life, a heart researcher reported today.

Dr. Richard T. Walden, of the Loma Linda University Medical School, said a 10-year study of California Adventists showed they suffered their first heart attacks a full decade later than most Americans and lived longer.

The 1.75 million members of the faith don't drink or smoke, use coffee and tea sparingly, eat much less meat than the national average, exercise regularly and avoid overweight, he said.

They generally die of the same diseases as other Americans—with heart attacks the number one killer—but men live an additional six years on the average and women about five years longer, Walden said.

mended by heart experts who criticized the American style of the "good life" Tuesday at the ninth Interamerican Congress of Cardiology.

"The good life does not necessarily have to mean the good life?" asked Dr. Jeremiah Stamler of the Chicago Health Research Foundation. "The essence of the good life is the ability to do what is pleasurable."

The two scientists recommended getting away from the notion.

Good life doesn't mean opulent life

He reported that a 35-year-old Seventh Day Adventist man has an average life expectancy of 76 years; compared to 70 years for the average American male of the same age.

In many ways, the Adventist life style parallels that recom-

Jerome citizens ask vote

BY CHARLOTTE BELL
Times-News writer

JEROME — A special school board meeting will be held Monday night so a group of Jerome citizens can ask for a bond election.

Leroy Craig, spokesman, said the group will ask the trustees to call a bond election for construction of additional classrooms at Jefferson Elementary school and to discontinue the use of Lincoln Elementary school.

He noted that 12 regular classrooms are included in the recommendation. He said plans call for a new dining area which would be used by the old and new sections.

The new proposal will also ask for a library large enough to accommodate both sections and the kitchen as well as teacher workrooms and additional restrooms.

"By incorporating the new addition with the existing facility, we believe we have come up with a building program which will upgrade Jefferson and, at the same time, provide space for many more children," Craig said.

Craig said his group ruled out a grade school as a separate facility for two reasons. First, the additional cost involved would be prohibitive and secondly, Jefferson is in need of improvements.

Craig said he received cost estimates from CTA Architects of Twin Falls which he will present to the board. He said his group conducted a recent survey which indicated the majority of district voters would favor the addition to Jefferson rather than spend the money to repair Lincoln school.

Craig said he talked with the school district fiscal agent and was informed that the addition can be financed within the six-mill levy.

The school district will end its six mill indebtedness June 20, 1972.

TWIN FALLS — New officers of the Twin Falls Education Association were elected Tuesday night.

Keith Farnsworth, Robert Stuart Junior High School, is new president; Gordon

Armstrong, Lincoln School, vice president and president-elect; Connie Hamilton, Bickel School, treasurer; and Ora Lee Wiseman, Washington School, secretary.

The new officers took office immediately upon their election. Duke Wiseman, Vera C. O'Leary Junior High School, is outgoing president.

The company began hauling gravel from the site April 7 and the road had not been surfaced. Upon notification of the violation the company discontinued hauling.

At that time, Kenneth Hansen, Burley, Gordon Paving Co., secretary, said the trucks were removing about 500 to 600 yards of stockpiled gravel, a process which he said would take about four days. He said the company "had every intention of oiling the road," but that "it was too early in the year to oil."

However, Hansen said the company intends to abandon the pit for this year because of economic reasons.

Vhay said Wednesday that the offer of a conditional permit was made in an effort to be reasonable, if the pit is to be abandoned this year.

Contention has surrounded the pit for almost a year. Recently, Vhay notified Gordon Paving that it was in violation of a county planning and zoning appeals board ruling which granted the company a conditional use permit to operate the pit.

66 Eagle Scouts honored at annual fete in Burley

BY LEE TREMAINE
Times-News writer

BURLEY — Sixty-six Eagle Scouts from the Magic Valley heard a challenge to make the fullest use of their training in Scouting Wednesday night.

During their annual awards banquet at the Ponderosa Inn, Fifth District Judge Sherman J. Bellwood told the Scouts and about 400 guests including family members and businessmen, "This is the beginning of the trail, not the end."

"You owe a great debt to your families, your friends and the Scouting officials. You must make plans to repay this debt," Bellwood said.

The Eagle Scouts, who have earned the highest award in the Boy Scout movement over the past year, were commended individually during the "parade of Eagles" by Judge Bellwood, C. P. Parrish, president of the Snake River Area Boy Scout Council; Robert S. (Bob) Gibb, administrative assistant to the president at Boise State College and guest speaker at the banquet and Ivan Skinner, Twin Falls, master of ceremonies.

Gibb told the audience that hikers wearing backpacks are seen frequently at Boise State College. He said he has asked a number of them what they put in their backpacks while traveling. They told him they pack a number of items, but only what they need for the trip.

Speaking on the topic, "Life's Backpack," Gibb said that the Scouts should take care to carry with them through life only those things they need to be prepared.

"I would suggest motivation," Gibb said. Noting that the Scout motto is "Be Prepared," he said the Scouts must be highly motivated and "must be prepared mentally" for success.

Emphasizing the need for "loyalty, integrity and punctuality," Gibb said a good character is essential for all men. "Character is what you stand for, reputation is what you fall for," he said.

Idaho PTA files amended action

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Congress of Parents and Teachers has filed an amended complaint in U. S. District Court challenging legislative designation of endowment land for park use.

Federal Judge Ray McNichols dismissed an earlier lawsuit March 23 on grounds the state has sovereign immunity from suits brought in federal court by state residents.

A stipulation permitting the refiling said there is a "substantial federal question" raised by the suit and a need for a court determination of the issues raised.

This stipulation also asks the court "not abstain" from making decision in the matter. Judge McNichols reserved

Knieval speaks at Filer

FILER — Evel Knieval, stunt motorcyclist, discussed plans for his 1973 jump over the Snake River Canyon for Filer Kiwanis Club members Tuesday.

Knieval said many people wonder why he chooses such a risky way of making a living. He said he enjoys racing and motorcycling and enjoys what he does.

He said accidents which subject a person's body to sudden jolts, a ruptured spleen, can cause death. Knieval said that is one thing he will not have to worry about because his spleen has been removed.

Knieval plans to unveil his specially built machine next month and will then set a definite time for his 1973 jump over the canyon.

Signup on handguns suggested

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson III, D-Ill., has introduced legislation under which all handgun owners would have to register their weapons with the federal government, sign a statement saying they meet state or local requirements for ownership and submit a set of their fingerprints and a photograph.

"Law abiding gun owners, like myself," Stevenson said, "ought to accept gladly the minor inconveniences of handgun licensing and registration in order to control the spread of criminal violence in America."

Stevenson said he had been hard at work and had returned to continue the SALT talks.

The return of Semenov and Smith's departure are rise to expectations among diplomats and SALT sources that both chief delegates need final approval by their respective government for an agreement on a partial nuclear arms treaty.

Both delegations said when they resumed the SALT talks here a month ago that they were determined to seek agreement limiting the number of defensive nuclear missiles and an interim accord on certain offensive weapons systems.

Methodist conference deals with resolutions

ATLANTA (UPI) — The United Methodist church's general conference, with one resolution condemning the war in Southeast Asia behind it, turned its attention Wednesday to a new resolution which asks church support for people who resist military service.

The statement was in the form of a majority report approved after two hours of debate and after a softer worded minority report was defeated 534-405. The majority report carried by a show of hands.

The report urged immediate steps to free prisoners of war, and called for withdrawal of all American troops and a cutoff of funds for the war by Congress no later than Dec. 31, 1972.

The resolution also called on the U. S. to cease all efforts to control the results of a political settlement, leaving such negotiations to the Vietnamese.

The delegates approved without debate a resolution urging economic sanctions against companies doing business with South Africa which practices a policy of apartheid.

NEW YORK (UPI)—For two decades it has been accepted as gospel in the United States that a person has little chance to make a good living without a college education.

Now, we are discovering the truth of what many campus rebels have been preaching the past five or six years—that a college education is no guarantee of a satisfactory job.

The U.S. Office of Education is warning young persons that within a few years only about 20 per cent of all the annual job openings will require the equivalent of a college education.

Government officials admit government bureaus seriously misestimated the educational requirements of industry, commerce and the professions in recent years. Only a few years ago the federal labor department talked of a continuing shortage of teachers. Thousands of youngsters trained to become teachers. Now teaching is a contracting vocation and thousands of these youngsters cannot find jobs.

The St. Louis Regional Industrial Development Corp. has launched a campaign to "unsell" youth on the idea that college is absolutely necessary. "Far more youngsters need up-to-date vocational or technical training than need college from the standpoint of job careers," said D. Reid Ross, executive vice-president of the St. Louis group. "There are about 21,000 job classifications in the United States. By 1980 there will be 30,000 and comparatively few will require even a bachelor's degree."

Ross cited a relatively recent government report saying that while 10 million American youths are enrolled in vocational or technical schools today, 25 million should be.

He conceded that in persuading young people to enroll for technical and vocational careers, the big problem is to avoid training them for jobs that already are becoming technologically obsolescent.

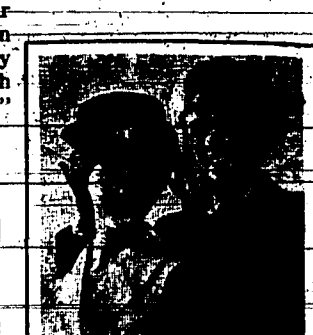

To avoid this, his organization works with 39,000 employers in the St. Louis metropolitan area and more than 200 private technical schools as well as the public schools to make certain the training programs are geared to the future.

"We are not anti-college," Ross said, "it's fine for kids to go to college for self-fulfillment and many will find their careers there. But the notion that college automatically opens doors to careers is myth that ought to be laid to rest."

Does U.S. have right to lie?

By NORMAN KEMPSTER
WASHINGTON (UPI)—Henry Kissinger's secret trip to Moscow has revived the emotion-charged debate question: Does the government have a right to lie to the public?

Although White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler recoiled from the phrase "right to lie," he made it plain President Nixon will pursue secret diplomacy when he thinks it is necessary and will take steps to preserve that secrecy.

Kissinger, Nixon's national security affairs adviser, was in Moscow from last Thursday evening until Monday noon, conferring with Communist Party Leader Leonid Brezhnev, while the White House was insisting he was at Camp David, Md., with Nixon.

Kissinger told newsmen Tuesday that both governments decided to keep the mission secret until it was concluded because of the "sensitive" state of relations between the United States and the Soviet Union.

In keeping Kissinger's whereabouts secret, however, the White House went beyond its familiar "no comment" or "I have no information on that" or "I don't know."

Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren told newsmen Thursday Nixon would go to Camp David later in the day for a long working weekend. He said Kissinger had preceded the President to the mountain-top retreat and was already there.

On Friday, Ziegler told his regular news briefing that Nixon was at Camp David conferring with John D. Erlichman, H. R. Haldeman and Kissinger. And on several other occasions before Nixon returned Monday night, the White House listed Kissinger as among the volunteers by the White House spokesmen, not offered in response to questions from reporters.

When his words were read back to him Tuesday, Ziegler said: "I would agree that that was misleading."

Ziegler absolved Warren of lying. He said his deputy too had been kept in the dark about Kissinger's plans.

Ziegler was asked directly if he believes the government has a right to lie.

"I am not going to fall into a position that I think an official of another administration (did) by making that statement," Ziegler said. He was referring to Arthur Sylvester, Pentagon spokesman in the Kennedy administration, who once claimed such a right.

Ziegler said Nixon "believes that seeking peace is so important that we must use every channel, private and public." He said the President is prepared to take steps to preserve the secrecy of the private channels.

"We decided that we had two choices: To announce the trip to Moscow, or to handle it the way we did," Ziegler said.

The press secretary noted that Kissinger's trip was announced within 24 hours of his return.

"We don't do this that often," Ziegler said. "I can't remember another instance."

Kissinger has made several unannounced trips including his famous journey to Peking which came after an official announcement that he was in Pakistan. Kissinger also made 12 secret trips to Paris to confer with North Vietnamese peace negotiators.

Showers may appear on horizon

Twin Falls, northside, Burley-Rupert area:

Fair and warmer through tonight. Increasing clouds with chance of showers or thundershowers Friday afternoon or evening. Lows tonight mid 30s and highs Friday in the 70s.

Outlook for Saturday calls for slightly cooler weather and cloudy.

Camas Prairie, Hailey and lower Wood River Valley:

Fair and warmer through tonight. Increasing clouds with a chance of showers or thundershowers Friday afternoon or evening. Lows tonight 28 to 33 and highs on Friday in the mid 60s.

Outlook for Saturday calls for slightly cooler and cloudy.

Synopsis:

Clear skies prevailed over all of southern Idaho today and low temperatures this morning were slightly warmer than yesterday morning.

Readings ranged from the upper 20s in the southeast portion to the 30s in the southwest valleys.

One of the nicest days so far this spring occurred today with sunny skies, warm temperatures and a gentle breeze.

Highs tomorrow are expected to reach into the 60s in southeast Idaho and up to the lower 70s in the generally warmer areas of southwestern Idaho.

On Friday a Pacific front will begin moving across southern Idaho causing some cloudiness and a threat of showers and possible thundershowers.

Temperatures will again be warm reaching 65 to 75 degrees throughout the area. Cooler air will follow this front so Saturday should be partly cloudy, windy and cooler.

The outlook for Sunday is for fair-weather and little temperature change from Saturday.

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI)—Walston & Co. says that despite the influx of good news for investors in the New York Stock exchange—good earnings, short interest—profit-taking is increasing, thus giving the Dow Jones averages a rough time.

The utility average is a reason for concern, Walston says, because of the lowest position since November. But, the firm adds, that is due partly to the higher loan interest rates.

Indicator Digest says "the pattern of springtime softness is by now so well established that it can exert pressure on the market." The firm points to the years from 1962 to 1968 and says in each instance, a correction was seen in the May-June period. However, the company adds, the drop this year will not be severe and overall outlook remains bullish.

Technical weakness has affected the market during the past couple of weeks but overall, E.F. Hutton's Investment Research Department says, "Now having helped bring about the decline, the technical factors will soon begin to work in favor of the market." Though the market is not necessarily going to make an immediate reversal of "the downward, Hutton adds, "it will be less vulnerable to bad news and more responsive to good news."

Merrill Lynch, Pierce Fenner & Smith says while there has been some disappointment over the recovery of the economy thus far, it is beginning to gain momentum.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY—he or she will be one of those fascinating young people who, upon reaching maturity, will start operating on a very even and practical keel, even though early in life the failure to come to the right decision on time makes the growing up a little difficult. Therefore it behooves you as parents to guide this child more than others. The ability here is great, but only time can bring it out properly.

Single Women
Apt To Giggle

Ticklishness is a sign of unrequited love. Or such is the reported claim of a mental specialist named Dr. Clyde B. Simpson. He is said to claim further that girls who giggle excessively when tickled most likely are not married.

DON'T BELIEVE I yet mentioned the average television station manager is almost but not quite 48 years old, stands 5-foot-9 tall, weighs a bit more than 176 pounds, is a veteran of nearly 23 years of marriage, and reports personal production of 2.0 children. Such are the statistics.

SURVEYS show No. 3 on that list of gifts most preferred by brides-to-be is the electric toaster. No. 4, a steam iron. No. 5, a coffee maker. No. 1 and No. 2, predictably, remain china and sterling. Only surprise in this scientific poll was No. 9, the electric blanket.

VETERANS

As to veterans, right after World War II, a little more than 38 out of every 100 of same possessed high school diplomas. Immediately following the Korean War, more than 44 out of 100 likewise owned such credentials. By now at the tallend of the Viet Nam War, approximately 71 out of 100 can be identified as graduates. The military of late is signing up and turning loose a far better educated batch of disillusioned men, that's clear.

Q. "ISNT it the law in some states that all bodies have to be embalmed?"
A. That's no law in any state. However, some require embalming. If the interment is delayed or a common carrier is used in transportation.

EXPECTING too much of either man or dog to be sympathetic certainly, but the fact is most fleas are blind. Don't even have eyes.

JUST 85 per cent of everything recorded in your brain, it's said, is something you've seen. Click, click, click. Little pictures.

ALSO BE advised, please, one ostrich egg omelet will serve 24 people.

LASHES

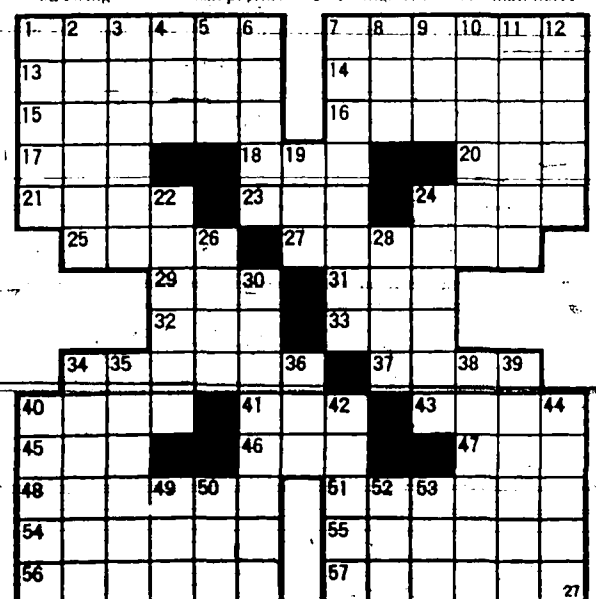

That the marketing boys report 50 million pairs of false eyelashes sold nationwide every year is not particularly astonishing. What's astonishing is they report a goodly number are bought to be worn by straight businessmen. Interesting, if true. Never met an ordinary everyday fellow decked out in false eyelashes. But it's seriously claimed now some hearty characters with sparse blonde upholstery affect the trick adornments to impress their girlfriends with that soulful look.
